Objects from the “Play Stations for Developing the Senses by Hugo Kükelhaus”

Visual stimulation and phenomena are just as much the focal point of these objects as mystification and astonishment. The “Rotating Discs” in their different versions (Spiral, Funnel, Pulsation and Colour Disc) positively draw the observer into the figures created by the turning movement. Complementary colours appear as if by magic on the dark edges of the disc. The rotation of the disc creates a third spatial dimension (funnel) and the rotational movement of the blue and yellow sections of the coloured disc “mixes” the colours to make green, which then appears as the complementary colour crimson.

The Graubner play stations for the development of the senses are inspired by ideas and actual objects created by Hugo Kükelhaus. Several of these can be viewed at a small special exhibition called "Themenwelt Freiraum" during the trade fair on aged care, "Altenpflege", in Nuremberg (24 to 26 March). In addition to the "Rotating Discs", the "Turning Circle", the "Tuning Stone" and the "Whirlpool Column" will also be on display. The "Leg Press", the "Rowing Machine" and the "Step Bench" will be introduced as part of a special exhibition on motor skills.

Because the Nuremberg Department of Cultural and Political Education from the Office of Culture and Leisure is also participating in the special exhibition (Themenwelt Freiraum) with a small promotional space, the objects can also be explored and experienced – specialist advice is included.
